He Enjoins His Enemies from "Conspiring" Against Him.

An additional complication in the disgraceful row at the state insane asylum was brought about in the district court late last evening. Dr. McCassey succeeded in getting an injunction against his enemies from "conspiring" against him.

The injunction is brought by the state on the relation of County Attorney Sanford against W. S. Wait, Annie Kneiberg, Victor Kneiberg, L. W. Pack and Emma Pack, and provides that "the defendants are restrained from conspiring to annoy, harass, hinder, embarrass, impede or obstruct J. H. McCassey in the full and free exercise of his rights, privileges and duties as superintendent of the state insane asylum."

The injunction is set for hearing next Monday at 2 p. m.

Silver Lake Cattle Stealing.

The trial of "Bill" McKelvey of Silver Lake, for cattle stealing, occupied most of the time of the district court yesterday afternoon and this morning. He is charged with stealing the head of cattle. The principal witnesses against him are Harry Neiswander, who was "in the deal" but turned state's evidence, and Farmers Teckmyer and Hendred-pund from whom the cattle were stolen. "Doc" Ward arrested McKelvey. S. R. Isenhardt is defending him.

MR. BONEBRAKE'S IDEA

He Quite Agrees With the Lyman Gage Plan

OF CREATING A CURRENCY SYSTEM

Which is Also Edward Wilder's Plan. The Banks to Control the Issuing of Paper Money.

TOPEKA, Kas., Dec. 13, 1894.

To the Editor of the STATE JOURNAL:

In the Associated Press reports published in the JOURNAL Wednesday, a synopsis of the plan of Lyman Gage on the national currency question was given. His plan is not a new one as Moffett of Denver, and Mr. Wilder of Topeka suggested the same plan, and the same plan was suggested several years ago. However, in my mind it is the plan.

Issue $500,000,000 in 2½ per cent interest bearing bonds (or so much thereof as may be necessary) due fifty years after date. These bonds can be sold at par. With the proceeds of the sale of the bonds the government to take up and cancel all classes of United States currency. When this is done the United States is out of the currency business.

Then in the language of Mr. Gage, "Amend the national banking act so that banks can obtain notes issued to the face value of bonds deposited as security for circulation. Reduce the tax on circulating notes to one-half of one per cent." Retain a tax upon circulation sufficient to pay the expenses of the comptroller's office and the general supervision of the national banks. There would then be but one form of paper currency in the country, the general government retaining all control of metallic money. No bills to be issued of a denomination less than $5, perhaps $10, thus providing a method for the circulation of silver.

To meet the demand for the payment in gold of bonds maturing between now and 1948, amounting to $— all national banks taking out currency under this law should be required to pay at least 15 per cent of the price of the bonds purchased in silver.

The benefits of this plan are: First—The government will be out of the currency business, and the treasury officials would not have to lie awake of nights planning to keep gold in the treasury to redeem government obligations.

Second—It would provide a uniform currency and one more elastic than the present currency.

Third—It will provide a currency not based upon a metal that has a valuation as fluctuating as wheat, corn, or other commodity.

Fourth—It would provide a currency as stable, and as good as the government itself.

Fifth—It will provide for the use of the silver coin of the country.

In other words these bonds would furnish a basis for a money circulation free from doubt and good as gold in all parts of our country.

This is merely an outline, but the efficiency and simplicity of the plan should meet general approval.

E. L. BONEBRAKE.
